
MIT ReACT Final Cohort Decision

8 messages

Lauren Benner <lbenner@mit.edu>
To: "maleki1441@gmail.com" <maleki1441@gmail.com>
Cc: Robert D Fadel <rdfadel@mit.edu>

Mon, Sep 10, 2018 at 9:33 AM

Dear Morteza,

Congratulations on completing the first two MicroMasters courses in Data, Economics, and Development Policy: The Challenges of Global Poverty and Data Analysis for Social Scientists. We are pleased to inform you that you have been admitted to the full ReACT track in the MicroMasters 2018-2019 cycle.

As part of this ReACT cohort, you will receive:

- Complete and fully subsidized access to the final 3 courses (MicroMasters; Foundations of Development Policy: Advanced Development Economics; Designing and Running Randomized Evaluations) and the final proctored examinations
- Certification in the DEDP MicroMasters program free of charge
- An opportunity to travel to an in-person workshop session on entrepreneurship, innovation, and leadership to take place in Amman, Jordan in January 2018
- A paid or unpaid internship with an organization in the field*
- MIT community course support and ReACT program support
- Access to a robust network of our affiliated academics, mentors, and industry professionals

The Skills-Building Workshop in Amman, Jordan will take place in January 2019. ReACT will support your travel costs and some related logistics. However, be aware that you will need to follow the appropriate procedures to secure travel permissions and visas as we get closer to January. Participation in the Workshop is dependent on your being legally able to travel roundtrip. MIT ReACT is only responsible for the costs associated with travel, and is not liable for policies, decisions, and visa restrictions beyond our control.

The fall semester for the DEDP MicroMasters begins this Tuesday, September 11. In order to stay on track with the ReACT program, you will need to enroll in The Foundations of Development Policy. You will receive a redeemable coupon for course payment by the deadline.

Looking forward, the Spring Semester for the DEDP MicroMasters starts February 5, 2019. During this semester, you will need to enroll in and take the final two courses: Microeconomics and Designing and Running Random Evaluations. You will receive a redeemable coupon for course payment by the deadline.

You have the option to take the proctored exams for the initial three DEDP courses if you are unable to travel to your nearby test centers during the scheduled exam periods. The Pearson Test Center closest to your location is in Columbia, South Carolina. Please reach out to Lauren Benner if you plan to take your proctored examinations in Amman.

By accepting ReACT sponsorship, you are agreeing to follow the MicroMasters in DEDP curriculum to completion. Please send a follow-up email confirming your participation in the program.

Congratulations again on your acceptance to the ReACT cohort in the DEDP MicroMasters, and we are looking forward to working with you!

Best Regards,

Robert Fadel